Art Unit: 3748

Applicant's amendment dated September 21, 2007, has been fully considered.

Applicant added new limitation "an electrical output for providing power to a fixed external structure" and argued the applied references do not have that limitation. After carefully reviewing this application, the Examiner strongly disagrees. All applied references including Limonius, Veazey, and Wash et al disclose portable power plants. Limonius discloses a vehicle with power plant with battery. It's well known all vehicles have electrical outlets to operate many devices which can be mounted inside or outside of the vehicle, for example, cigarette lighters, audio system, DVD players, cell phones, air compressor to inflate tires, and many more devices. Also, the purpose of the portable power plants in Wash et al and Veazey is to be able to transport and supply power/electricity to different locations, and must be used with fixed structure outside of the portable power plants. Therefore, it's concluded that the newly added limitations do not define over the previous rejections and said rejections are maintained as follows.

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 1, 9, 13-15, 19, 46, 48-49, 51, are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being obvious based on US 4261329 (Walsh et al) in view of US 2002/0153178 (Limonius).

Art Unit: 3748

Walsh et al discloses an energy system which can be used both on vehicle platform (126, 143, 145) the energy system uses solar energy by having adjustable solar cell panels 44, or to generate electricity. Walsh et al does not teach the generator, a fuel storage container, and batteries. Limonius discloses a portable power plant in a car having solar panels 16, electric generators 68, 26, 22, 46, for generating back-up energy, batteries 48, fuel storage tank 50. It would have been obvious to provide electric generators, batteries, and fuel container in Walsh et al as taught by Limonius for the purpose of generating and storing back-up energy. Also, it's well known that all portable power plants and/or vehicle/trailer have electrical outlets for operating devices outside, for example, cigarette lighters, audio system, DVD players, cell phones, air compressor to inflate tires, and many more devices. Therefore, the newly added limitations do not define over this rejection.

Claims 1, 4-8, 13-19, 45-46, 48-49, 51, 56, 58, are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being obvious based on US 4553037 (Veazey) in view of US 4261329 (Walsh et al) and US 2002/0153178 (Limonius).

Regarding claims 1, 9, 13-15, 19, 46, 48-49, 51, 56, 58, Veazey discloses a hybrid energy system which can be used both on vehicle platform (figure 6), or on boats (figures 5, 7-18), the energy system uses both solar energy and wind energy by having adjustable solar cell panels 25, or adjustable Darrieus windmill 21 to generate electricity through back-up generator 26 or to store energy in batteries 24. Veazey does not disclose the system mounted on a distinct platform from a vehicle. Walsh et al discloses an energy system which can be used both on vehicle platform (126, 143, 145) the energy system uses solar energy by having adjustable solar cell panels 44, or to generate electricity. It would have been obvious to mount the system in Veazey on a separate platform from a vehicle as taught by Walsh et al for the purpose of ease of assembling/disassembling the platform. Veazey also does not teach the generator, a fuel storage container, and batteries. Limonius discloses a portable power plant in a car having solar panels 16, electric generators 68, 26, 22, 46, for generating back-up energy, batteries 48, fuel storage tank 50. It would have been obvious to provide electric generators, batteries, and fuel container in Veazey as taught by Limonius for the purpose of generating and storing back-up energy. Regarding claims 4-6, 16, 46, Veazey discloses all the claimed subject matter as set forth above in the rejection of claim 1, but does not disclose the specific powers, different types of containers, battery box, connector..etc..... However, it would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to elect different types of devices as claimed in Veazey for the purpose of achieving appropriate power output. Also, it's well known that all portable power plants and/or vehicle/trailer have electrical outlets for operating devices outside, for example, cigarette lighters, audio system, DVD players, cell phones, air compressor to inflate tires, and many more devices. Therefore, the newly added limitations do not define over this rejection.

Art Unit: 3748

Claims 17-18, 36, 54, 57, 59, are rejected under 35 U.S.C. § 103(a) as being unpatentable over U.S. 4553037 (Veazey) in view of Walsh et al and Limonius, and US 2003/0054329 (Springett). Veazey as modified discloses all the claimed subject matter as set forth above in the rejection of claim 1, but does not disclose the communication system having satellite dish. Springett discloses it's well known for a portable power plant on a vehicle platform to have a satellite dish (column 2). It would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to provide a satellite dish in Veazey as taught by Springett for the purpose of communicating with other facilities if needed.
